

15 October - 19 November 2022

Hannah Maurice
Caroline Faigan
Benedict Maurice
Tanja McMillan
Ophelia af m Jones

Public Programme

Saturday 29 October, 2022

Artist-Led Workshop: 11 - 1pm

Artists Talk: 2 - 3pm

Free Entry | All Welcome | Wheelchair Accessible

L'at a China de		20
List of Works		Hannah Maurice
1 Ophelia af m Jones		VENUS AS A GIRL, 2022 acrylic on board, handmade recycled antique kauri frame
MEN CARRYING FLOWERS		66 x 45cm	$2000
gouache on gloss paper rimu fame	$1650	21
2		Hannah Maurice
Ophelia af m Jones		PETALS, 2022 acrylic on recycled wooden vessels
FOUR LILIES gouache on paper		17 x 13cm	$550
rimu frame	$1450	22
3		Hannah Maurice PERSEPHONE, 2022
Hannah Maurice SEED HEADS, 2022		acrylic on board, handmade recycled Rimu frame polished and polychromed earthenware, seed pearls, recycled fabrics	HEADS $60 POPPETS $100	73 x 134cm	$3700
and threads.		23
4 Hannah Maurice		Benedict Maurice EVOLUTION DISSOLUTION
STACK, 2022		rusted mild steel, braise and antique braised nail hook	$600
earthenware, wild clay, wild slip, sandstone, foraged obsidian, beach brick, hubba bubba bubblegum	$300	24
25 x 25 x 13cm		Benedict Maurice WISHING CROWN
5		recycled copper, wishing shells	$600
Hannah Maurice GENIE, 2020	NEC	25
earthenware, polychrome, lead crystal 27 x 17 x 17cm	NFS	Benedict Maurice
27 X 17 X 17CIII		KAURI KING submarine cable, kauri leaves, sea foraged kauri gum
6 Caroline Faigan			$600
POMME, 2022	$1200	26 Benedict Maurice
printed paper and gesso on card 300 x 300mm	Ψ1200	LAVA LAND
7		lava rock, recycled copper, oyster shell	$600
Tanja McMillan and Hannah Maurice	Enquire	27 Benedict Maurice
POLLEN GLADE		DAISY CROWN
8 Caroline Faigan		silver, recycled bronze, pearls and recycled wood 40cm	NFS
PARADISE, 2019	$1200
printed paper and gesso on card 30 x 30cm	Ψ1E00	28 Benedict Maurice
9		SEA TANGLE	$600
Caroline Faigan		recycled copper and brass	, 4000
DISPHYLAXIS, 2022 printed paper and gesso on card	$1200	29
30 x 30cm	$1200	Benedict Maurice POHUTUKAWA PARTY	4000
10		recycled copper, pohutukawa leaves	$600
Caroline Faigan		30
WEED, 2022 printed paper and gesso on card	$1200	Tanja McMillan BOUQUET	$1300
30 x 30cm		aerosol, ink and acrylic on 180gsm paper	$1300
		120 x 120cm
11		Artist Statem	e n t s
Tanja McMillan
DAISY WHISPERS aerosol, ink & acrylic on 180 gsm on paper	$800	Hannah (Melville) Maurice is a painter and ceramiste, she studied at Elam, COFA and St Quentin	Ophelia af m Jones is an artist from Aotearoa, New Zealand. Drawn to moments of everyday encounter
120 cm x 50cm	$600
	ф800		and intimate gesture her multidisciplinary practice
12	$500	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict,	includes photography, painting and sculpture.
Hannah Maurice	$800	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON.	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon,		la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict,	includes photography, painting and sculpture.
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022	$250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan 's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm		la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish.		la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies.
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS	$250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan		la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies.
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm	$250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper	$250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy.
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022	$250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice	$250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits.	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy.
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon,	$250 $1200	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal,
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm	$250 $1200	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm	$250 $1200	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal,
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line,	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022	$250 $1200	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice.	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint.	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity,	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain , Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch , her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in 2019 where her research project explored the	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice CODLING MOTHS, MOTHER & DAUGHTER, 2022	$250 $1200 $250 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of energy, and the absolute sovereignty of nature
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice	$250 $1200 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in 2019 where her research project explored the character Lilith from Hebrew mythology. The work, Paradise, included in Daisy Chain Bunch, is the first in this series of works that were influenced by	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of energy, and the absolute sovereignty of nature itself. Made from a variety of recycled and found
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SIADE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice CODLING MOTHS, MOTHER & DAUGHTER, 2022 acrylic on recycled wooden plate	$250 $1200 $250 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in 2019 where her research project explored the character Lilith from Hebrew mythology. The work, Paradise, included in Daisy Chain Bunch, is the first in this series of works that were influenced by theologist Judith Plaskow's 2005 text The Coming of	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of energy, and the absolute sovereignty of nature itself. Made from a variety of recycled and found materials, leaves and shells are elevated to jewel
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice CODLING MOTHS, MOTHER & DAUGHTER, 2022 acrylic on recycled wooden plate 22 x 25cm 18 Hannah Maurice	$250 $1200 $250 $500 $550	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in 2019 where her research project explored the character Lilith from Hebrew mythology. The work, Paradise, included in Daisy Chain Bunch, is the first in this series of works that were influenced by	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of energy, and the absolute sovereignty of nature itself. Made from a variety of recycled and found materials, leaves and shells are elevated to jewel status. Through his work Benedict lets us reassess
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice CODLING MOTHS, MOTHER & DAUGHTER, 2022 acrylic on recycled wooden plate 22 x 25cm 18	$250 $1200 $250 $250	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in 2019 where her research project explored the character Lilith from Hebrew mythology. The work, Paradise, included in Daisy Chain Bunch, is the first in this series of works that were influenced by theologist Judith Plaskow's 2005 text The Coming of Lilith. Plaskow re-tells Lilith's biblical story of origin from Genesis I, as a being created from the earth. Plaskow connects Lilith with pre-monotheistic	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of energy, and the absolute sovereignty of nature itself. Made from a variety of recycled and found materials, leaves and shells are elevated to jewel
Hannah Maurice BLUE BOW FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid/line/ribbon, shells. acrylic paint, nail polish. 41 x 31cm 13 Tanja McMillan DAISY CHAIN SISTERS aerosol, ink and crylic on 180gsm paper 150cm x 100cm 14 Hannah Maurice MOON SEA FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan, beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells, acrylic paint 35 x 35cm 15 Hannah Maurice SNAP FAN, 2022 recycled straw fan. beach foraged fishing braid, line, ribbon, shells and buttons, acrylic paint. 35 x 35cm 16 Hannah Maurice SLIDE FAERY, 2022 acrylic on wooden recycled wooden vessel 39 x 13cm 17 Hannah Maurice CODLING MOTHS, MOTHER & DAUGHTER, 2022 acrylic on recycled wooden plate 22 x 25cm 18 Hannah Maurice BASTET WITH VASE, 2021	$250 $1200 $250 $500 $550	la Poterie. Overseas for many years, she now lives and creates in Aotearoa with her husband Benedict, onboard their studio sailboat HONEYMOON. Hannah's work for Daisy Chain Bunch includes painting and multimedia pieces. These works are part of her ongoing exploration of archetypes - the transformative powers of nature - and the celebration of story informed by folklore, earth energy and human experience. In the first iteration of Daisy Chain, Hannah was exploring green otherness the notion of non-human sentience and the idea of faery realms which intertwine with our cultural experience of the daisy. For Daisy Chain Bunch, her painting and multimedia work references antique story and romantic narrative threads relating to deities and earth spirits. Hannah's work is informed by nature, animals, plants and fungi - all have a place in her lush visual language. Her figurative works are potently female and the psychological and physical construction of the female figure is central to her practice. Caroline Faigan is an artist based in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. She works in collage, painting, sculpture and installation. Though often appearing minimal and monochromatic, Caroline's work explores narrative, symbolism and subjectivity, frequently referencing the human body. Caroline graduated with a Master of Fine Arts from Elam School of Fine Arts, University of Auckland in 2019 where her research project explored the character Lilith from Hebrew mythology. The work, Paradise, included in Daisy Chain Bunch, is the first in this series of works that were influenced by theologist Judith Plaskow's 2005 text The Coming of Lilith. Plaskow re-tells Lilith's biblical story of origin from Genesis I, as a being created from the earth.	includes photography, painting and sculpture. Tanja McMillan's work references the daisy chain and underscores the magic of friendship, symbiotic relationships and the infinite network of nature on all levels. Her playful paper chains engage our imaginations and memories whilst commenting on the link that bind all life and earthly energies. Tanja's contribution to this iteration of Daisy Chain Bunch, is a colourful and delicate installation of paper and colour, bringing to mind the petals of flowers and the ephemeral yet enduringly nature of the daisy. Tanja McMillan (Misery) is a much loved New Zealand contemporary artist, her unique and magical style can be seen and enjoyed in her many public art works and collaborations. The animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are ever present in the work of this nature loving artist. Tanja exhibits regularly in Aotearoa and overseas. The starting point for Benedict Maurice's work in Daisy Chain Bunch is a memory of being taught and trying to make daisy chains as a small child - the difficulty of splitting the stems with his fat little fingers and the concentration and dexterity needed for this delicate task. The crowns that have evolved from his initial DAISY CROWN are created and informed by notions of natural decay and materiality, the transformation of energy, and the absolute sovereignty of nature itself. Made from a variety of recycled and found materials, leaves and shells are elevated to jewel status. Through his work Benedict lets us reassess our ideas around what is precious and beautiful, and

Benedict was Sydneyside as a designer and maker for many years, he now lives and creates with his wife Hannah on their boat HONEYMOON as part of @honeymoonseastudio on the waters of Aotearoa.

acrylic on recycled wooden vessel

Hannah Maurice

$600

outcast.

of femininity, fruit and foliage alternating with the stripe, historically the symbol of otherness and the